The rummage sale held in Abbot Village hall on Friday and Saturday by the Helping Hand society of the Free church was successfully conducted, nearly forty dollars being cleared.

B. S. Brown, consulting engineer, of Boston, was in town Wednesday. He is designing the structural details of the new addition to the Bay State Building in Lawrence for the architects.

Mrs. Nancy Tyler of Whittier street observed her ninety-first birthday on Sunday. She was the recipient of numerous flowers and other remembrances. Mrs. Tyler is the oldest living pupil of Abbot Academy.

Word has been received from Mr. and Mrs. M. S. McCurdy, who have spent several months abroad, that they will sail for America May 20. They will visit relatives in the west, however, before coming to Andover.

Mrs. M. E. Todd of Andover is accompanying her son, Frederick G. Todd, a prominent landscape architect in Montreal, Can., on a three-weeks' business trip to Victoria, B. C. The government there has an Indian reservation of 160 acres, practically within the city, to be laid out. Ten thousand dollars a family, or $420,000 in all, has been paid the Indians to move to a new reservation.

The concert given last Friday evening in the Lawrence city hall by the Phillips Academy combined musical clubs was a great success. The audience was composed entirely of foreigners and their friends, who have attended the classes being held by the Phillips Academy Educational Union. Credit is due to C. C. Clough for the manner in which the concert was conducted.

Andover lodge, I. O. G. T., held an installation of officers Tuesday evening in the Baptist church vestry. The following officers were installed by Grand Lodge Deputy Alexander Valentine: C. T., Robert Auchterlonie; V. T., Annie Boyd; S. J. W., Bella Adams; secretary, Alfred Lundgren; F. S., James Libby; treasurer, James Turner; chaplain, Mary Cunningham; P. C. T., Roscoe Cole. Visitors were present from Brook lodge and Good Hope lodge of Lawrence.

"The Marriage of Prince Fluttermay" will be presented at the Andover Guild by the Junior Girls' club on Saturday evening, May 13 at eight o'clock.

The monthly meeting of the Natural History society next Tuesday evening will be in charge of the historical department. One of the interesting old homes to be considered will be the Osgood house in West Andover, where the Revolutionary patriot, James Otis, died.

The Men's club of the South church will hold its annual business meeting a week from tonight at half past seven. At eight o'clock Dr. David Snedden, the state commissioner of education, will speak. The Men's club is inviting other men's organizations in town to be present.

Next Sunday has been designated "Mother's Sunday." In observance of this name, John MacDonald will read passages from "A Window in Thrums," at the South church next Sunday evening. He will give readings which refer to the life of Jesus, the "mother" of the story. A double quartet will sing.

It has been found inadvisable to arrange for a special car to "The World in Boston." The exposition is open many forenoons. Any parties desiring to go in the morning could get in from ten to twelve at the regular rates. To make sure, inquiry should be made by phone at the general office of "The World in Boston," Mechanics Building.

The Andover Mothers' club held a regular meeting, Friday, May 5, at the kindergarten rooms of the Samuel Jackson school. Following the business the children of Miss Prevost's grade entertained with songs and readings. The members then spent the remainder of the time sewing in order to help the district nurse in her work. Sandwiches, cake, coffee and candies were served by Mrs. W. Scott, chairman, Mrs. T. Platt, Mrs. J. Dumont, Mrs. W. Knipe, and Mrs. James May.

One hundred dollars more has been received during the past week from the following contributors: John Alden, Miss Mary A. Ballard, Mrs. G. T. Eaton, Mrs. George Ripley, Mrs. H. S. Robinson, and Professor W. H. Ryder.

Total contributions to May 11, $535.28.

Balance needed in contributions, $275.00.

The Committee welcomes gifts in sums of one or two dollars as well as the larger contributions. The Treasurer hopes to have the complete sum in hand or subscribed by June 1.

M. W. STACKPOLE, Treasurer

Punchard Wins 9 to 5

The Punchard baseball nine defeated the Pinkerton Academy of Derry, N. H., 9 to 5 last Friday afternoon. The game was scheduled to be played in Derry, but through some misunderstanding the Pinkerton team came to Andover.

Pinkerton secured the lead in the second inning when two runs were scored, but Punchard more than squared matters in the fifth when the local team piled up seven runs. Each nine scored two more points in the eighth. The summary:

Andover Defeated Princeton

Andover defeated the Princeton Freshman team 3 to 2 in an interesting game played on Brothers' Field on Saturday afternoon. Wardwell and Mahan pitched for Andover while Lear did good work in the box for Princeton.

In the third inning, Princeton made her two runs, but was unable to score again. Andover tied the score in the ninth and in a tenth inning when two men were out, decided the game by scoring a third run. The final run was effected through an excellent hit by Mahan.

SURRENDER OF THE FEDERALS

Victory of the Mexican Rebels at Juarez is Complete

NAVARRO GIVES UP SWORD

Federal General and His Garrison Will Be Treated as Brothers Rather Than Prisoners, the Insurrectos Holding Diaz Responsible For Loss of Life and Suffering of Wounded—Town Which Federals Thought Impregnable Falls After Comparatively Easy Effort on Part of Rebels

Juarez, Mex., May 11.—This little bullet-riddled city is the provisional capital of Mexico and Francisco I. Madero, Jr., provisional president, and his staff have taken possession of it after winning the bloodiest battle of the Mexican revolution.

In a corner room of the barracks in which for two days he held out against the fire of the rebels, General Juan Navarro, the federal commander, is a captive, for he surrendered with almost his entire garrison of several hundred men.

His face is sunken, his head is bowed, and he does not talk. Bitter defeat has disheartened him.

In contrast, in another part of the town, is Madero, the conqueror, surrounded by members of his family and his staff, joyous and flushed with victory; yet ready, he says, to make peace with the Mexican government if it is disposed to deal frankly and sincerely with the revolutionists and without such "vague promises as President Diaz' manifesto contains."

In hotel lobbies, store fronts and hallways, the improvised hospitals of the battlefield, are scores of wounded, attended by numerous physicians and nurses from El Paso, who have volunteered aid.

A conservative estimate of physicians, as well as of insurrecto leaders who surveyed the fighting, puts the federal dead at nearly fifty and the rebel loss at about fifteen, with a total of nearly 250 wounded on both sides. The actual number lost probably never will be known, for deserters were many and the dead have been buried quickly.

Among the dead federals are Colonel Tamborel and Captain Sachudo. The former, a few days ago, taunted the rebels as cowards.

On the American side of the line five have been killed and about seventeen wounded, many of them being innocently engaged at a distance from the river.

The actual surrender of the town by Navarro took place about 1 o'clock. Navarro gave his sword to Colonel Garibaldi of the insurrecto army after the rebels had entirely surrounded the barracks and threatened to annihilate the garrison within.

His eyes became dim with tears as he surrendered, but Garibaldi, with a handshake that bespoke his admiration for the gallant resistance the federal leader made, assured him of the desire of the rebels to afford him every courtesy. Twenty rebel officers rode up and expressed to the federal commander, as Mexicans, their sympathy for him and his men.

The same fraternal feeling prevails in the whole insurrecto army for their countrymen who have been defeated, but words of opprobrium for President Diaz, whom they hold responsible for the loss of life and the suffering of the wounded, are heard on every side.

General Madero, when he arrived yesterday at the corral where the federal prisoners are quartered, made a speech full of sympathy and encouragement, lauding them for their bravery and assuring them that in his heart as well as in those of his men there was no enmity, but uniform friendliness.

"You fought for General Diaz," he said at the conclusion of his speech, "because you had to, because you were a part of that system which we are trying to dissolve. In a few days perhaps peace will be restored. You soon will be free. If the war is to be continued, you can have your choice of being paroled or joining the army of liberation. In the meantime we shall treat you as brothers, not as foes."

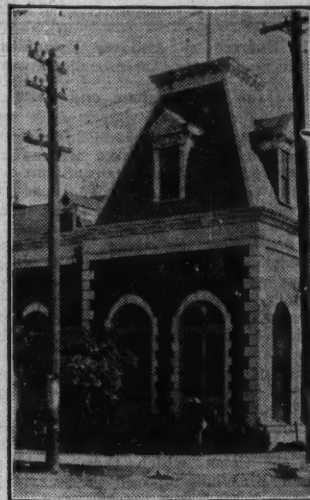

With shouts of "Viva Madero," the throng of prisoners and insurrectos who gathered to hear him threw their hats skyward and shouted in deafening applause.

A few minutes later, down the main thoroughfare, was heard the galloping of horses and soon the insurrectos' standard, the Mexican national colors, waved in the sunlight. Behind it rode Mrs. Madero. An escort of cavalry accompanied her. Her face was beaming as she spurred her horse to the scene of her husband's triumph. The shouting increased as the two embraced and entered the Madero headquarters.

Orders were issued by General Orozco to his men to guard stores and houses to prevent looting. The general himself shot at two of his men

JUAREZ CUSTOM HOUSE

Important Building in City Taken by the Insurrectos whom he caught trying to make away with some booty.

The town federals thought impregnable fell after a comparatively easy effort. The house to house advance and the same deadly fire, which drove the federals from their trenches and outposts early Monday when skirmishing began, gave the rebels, who were hardly affected by the federal artillery, an entrance to the town. At the close of Tuesday's fighting the rebels had extensive control of the place.

During the night they discovered the federal strongholds, and by the use of dynamite bombs and shells, a conflagration and fierce rifle fire fought their way to the famous old Spanish church, the brick of which formed a barricade for the federals. The insurrectos took the church at midnight. The federals retired further into the city to the roof of the municipal building, the edges of which were piled with sand bags.

After the assault was renewed Wednesday and the rebels had brought their machine guns within effective range, the federals retired to the barracks and insurrectos by the hundred occupied the houses within 100 yards on every side. Their fire was rapidly demolishing the building and there was no other alternative for Navarro but to yield.

Finally at noon Navarro hoisted a white flag. He first attempted to send a messenger to Senor Obregon, one of the go-betweens in the recent peace negotiations, asking him to arrange for a cessation of hostilities or for an armistice, but the rebels would accept nothing but immediate surrender.

ROOSEVELT ON DECK DURING CAMPAIGN

Story About Polar Expedition Is Called Nonsense

New York, May 11.—Theodore Roosevelt will not spend the summer of 1912—presidential year—in hunting polar bears in the Arctic with an expedition led by Captain Bartlett, late of the Peary polar expedition, but will be right here in the United States, attending to such matters of importance as may develop at that time.

The authority for this is Roosevelt himself. A contrary impression has been given in an item sent out to the newspapers, which quoted Bartlett as authority for the statement that big game hunting in the Arctic has more attractions for Roosevelt than the next presidential campaign, as the colonel now sees it. Bartlett, the item said, had Roosevelt's acceptance pledged.

The Times telegraphed to Roosevelt at Oyster Bay asking him if it was true that he proposed to put in the summer months preceding the presidential election in an Arctic hunting trip. Quick as the telegraph wires could carry it came back this reply: "Nonsense."

District Attorney Says McManigal Will Plead Guilty

DARROW TO HAVE EVIDENCE

Counsel For Defense Starts East, Stopping at San Francisco on the Way to Consult With Labor Leaders—Boston Labor Unions Asked to Contribute to $500,000 Fund For Secretary-Treasurer McNamara

Los Angeles, Cal., May 8.—The district attorney and other officials held a conference on the cases of John J. and James B. McNamara, charged with murder and dynamiting while Leo M. Rappaport, their attorney, was on the way east with a copy of the evidence taken before the grand jury which indicted them.

Attorney Rappaport will consult with Clarence S. Darrow, who is expected here about May 15 to assume his duties as leading counsel for the defense.

District Attorney Fredericks says that the time of the arraignment of Ortle E. McManigal, alleged confessed dynamiter, is not settled, but that "the man undoubtedly will plead guilty."

Attorney Rappaport started eastward by way of San Francisco, where he will talk with labor leaders who declared they had evidence of importance for the defense. He will return here by June 1, the time set for the McNamara brothers to plead.

Meantime Job Harriman of Los Angeles will meet Judge Bordwell, who will hear the trials, and Fredericks, to determine what would be the proper amount of bail to be fixed in the case of John J. McNamara on the charge of dynamiting.

Half Million Defense Fund

Boston, May 8.—John J. McNamara, secretary-treasurer of the Structural Iron Workers' union, awaiting trial at Los Angeles for alleged complicity in dynamiting The Times building in that city, will have a $500,000 defense fund, according to an official notice received by Boston labor leaders.

This communication was in the nature of an appeal for funds to defend McNamara. It came from Frank Duffy, general secretary of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, with headquarters in Indianapolis, and was addressed to the Carpenters' District Council of Greater Boston.

There are 6000 union carpenters in this district, with twenty-seven local unions. Dan H. Deegon, secretary of the council, declared that they will all be asked to contribute.

PERNICOUS ACTIVITY

Postal Clerks Devote Too Much Time to Forming Trade Union

Washington, May 10.—Second Assistant Postmaster General Stewart frankly admitted before the committee on the civil service that clerks had been discharged from the government service for activity in promoting the organization of a trade union. The clerks were removed from the St. Paul office. They were good clerks, Stewart said, but their "pernicious activity" amounted to insubordination.

Oscar F. Nelson, president of the National Federation of Postal Clerks, and dismissed from the postal service in Chicago because of union activity, also was a witness.

COLONEL HIGGINSON DEAD

Author Was Held in High Esteem by All Who Knew Him

Cambridge, Mass., May 10.—Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson, aged 87, famous abolitionist, poet, author, historian, and veteran of the Civil war, died at his home in this city late last night. Death was due to general breakdown, the result of a long life of mental and physical activity. Death came as gently as would a peaceful sleep.

At the bedside were his wife, his daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Barney, her husband, Dr. J. E. Barney of Boston, Dr. John L. Hildreth, his family physician, and two trained nurses, who had attended him during his illness.

Colonel Higginson was born in Cambridge Dec. 22, 1823, son of Stephen and Louisa (Storow) Higginson. He had a distinguished ancestry. His paternal grandfather was a successful shipmaster before the revolution, and later a delegate to the Continental congress. His mother was the daughter of Captain Thomas Storow, a British officer.

BY VOTE OF MORE THAN TWO TO ONE

House Passes Free List Bill Without a Single Change

Washington, May 9.—Nine hours of continuous pounding by the Republican minority failed to make a single change in the first Democratic tariff bill, that placing on the free list agricultural implements, meats and many other articles.

The bill passed the house last night by a vote of 236 to 109. The Democrats voted solidly for the measure and carried twenty-four Republicans with them.

An effort by Mr. Mann to recommit the bill to the committee on ways and means was tabled by the house.

SUNDAY BALL IN OHIO

Bill Permitting Games Becomes Law Without Governor's Signature

Columbus, O., May 8.—Governor Harmon allowed the Greeves bill, which permits Sunday baseball in certain Ohio cities providing the people there vote for it, to become a law without his signature.

Under the Greeves measure baseball can be played on Sunday if 40 percent of the voters request the matter to be placed on the ballot and if the people then vote to allow it.

The bill will allow American league games in Cleveland and several minor league cities of the state. Cincinnati, Columbus and Toledo now have Sunday baseball.

Looks Like Frothingham and Luce

Louis A. Frothingham, Joseph Walker, and Norman White, are candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor. Allen T. Treadway and Walter S. Glidden are generally understood to be candidates for Lieutenant Governor. Robert Luce is understood to be in a receptive mood for either one of these positions. Outside of these names, we know of no men who are seeking political honors on the State ticket at the hands of the Republican party the present year.

There has not been wanting considerable evidence for some time that the so-called Republican machine in Massachusetts had practically settled upon the ticket which they would promote this coming fall. That evidence increases day by day, and it is pretty generally understood at the present time that if those who are supposed to dominate Republican politics in Massachusetts have their way, the Republican ticket at the coming election will be Frothingham and Luce. Personally, the writer will regret that President Treadway of the Senate does not make up one of this selected ticket, and there are many people in Massachusetts who will feel the same way. On the other hand, under conditions as they exist at the present time, the selection as above suggested is undoubtedly the strongest ticket than can be named for the coming fall contest.

We do not ignore the strength of Mr. Walker or his claim upon the position. He is undoubtedly weaker today than he was a year ago and yet he may still have strength enough, with the public mind in the condition it is at the present time, to ride into the position he seeks. There is no gainsaying the fact that those who know him best, believe that he is not sincere, and are convinced that his agitation and approval of many things which he has held to be heresies for many years, are now due to his desire to curry popular favor.

Because he has refused to follow the bent that has controlled Speaker Walker, the Lieutenant Governor is undoubtedly stronger than he was a year ago. No one has ever accused him of being a big man, and no one has ever accused him of being a powerful political leader, but it cannot be denied that he has succeeded in keeping his following in pretty compact shape and of sufficient size to land him a winner in his several contests before the people. And for that reason it is a sensible position for a man to take, who insists that Mr. Frothingham should be nominated for Governor this fall.

Mr. Luce's reasoning, and the reasoning of his friends is certainly not illogical. Many of his friends believe that no man in Massachusetts politics at the present time can defeat Governor Foss for re-election. They further believe that Mr. Luce can be elected Lieutenant Governor and become a year hence the logical candidate for Governor. He has some elements of weakness but he also has many strong points. Mr. Luce is one of the best informed men in public life in Massachusetts. He is clean and able. From the viewpoint of many people he is a bit narrow, and on some questions takes positions that add neither to the strength of the ticket upon which he runs, or to his own personal standing.

If the machine is to choose, as there is little doubt but that it will, it certainly could go farther and fare much worse than to name the ticket that is now so generally understood to be its choice.

A Refreshing Protest

We doubt if very many people know much about the existing controversy between State Treasurer Stevens and Expert Accountant Chase. Certainly we haven't yet been able to figure out where there is any very serious difference between them, except that Mr. Chase wants to earn fifty dollars a day investigating something and making a report that will please those who are hiring him, while Mr. Stevens considers that Mr. Chase doesn't know what he is after, and that as an official he is answerable to the voters of this Commonwealth, and to no one else.

From a layman's point of view it would appear that Mr. Chase has got the worst of it thus far; also from a layman's point of view, it would appear that he doesn't really know what he is talking about in some of his comments about the State Treasurer's department, which probably explains why he has got the worst of it.

The writer does, however, have a fairly long acquaintance with State Treasurer Stevens, and out of this acquaintance he has formed the opinion that the man who butts up against that gentleman wants to be pretty well posted upon the matter under discussion. Treasurer Stevens assumed his present office without any experience as a financial man. We don't assume that he would be called a very remarkable master of finance at the present time, but let no one think that he does not know the actual, intricate details of his office, for the contrary is bound to be true of a man of his makeup. If he doesn't know a subject, he looks into it and studies it until he does, and we have an opinion that no public official holds a better place in Massachusetts from the standpoint of close application, of hard study into the problems associated with his work, of a keen power to analyze, than does State Treasurer Stevens.

Expert Chase is monkeying with a buzz-saw when he gets up against Mr. Stevens. It is pretty refreshing in these days of investigating everything to find one official who knows his job, who is confident in his ability to handle it, and who has the courage to literally "kick out" the expert crank, whose sole stock in trade is a maze of figures meaning nothing to anybody, but so much to everybody as to confuse and raise doubt. Mr. Stevens had done some pretty good public service before he was elected State Treasurer. He has added to that public service by his actions during the past two weeks.

Editorial Cinders

If there are any boys in Andover, in Phillips Academy or anywhere else, who know no better than to set forest fires, just for the sake of "striking matches," in a dry time like the present, they should be given some sort of lesson that will teach them the seriousness of their foolish prank. Several times daily we have seen the men start out from the town house with the necessary equipment for putting out the forest fire. Not for many years has a spring witnessed so many serious results following the dry spell, and certainly there are enough natural troubles to be looked after without having the deliberate action of some irresponsible boy become responsible for more. Disagreeable as is the work for the fire fighters, few people realize the expense that all this brings to the landholder who happens to possess more or less woodland. There is no possible way of insuring against the forest fire, and the loss is pretty heavy where the blaze gets into well-grown woodland, sure to ultimately bring destruction to the trees. There are many ways for conservation of natural resources fully as important as those which attend the preaching of the planting of more trees.

Andover has some pleasing honors of which she never hears, unless perchance they work in around the corners, as does the story of the success achieved by Arden Farm Creamery. Supt. Putnam of the Arden Farm is very properly taking a deal of pride in the announcement that the first honors at Amherst Agricultural College, at a recent exhibit, went to the butter from Arden Farm Creamery. Not that this was any new experience, for already first premiums had come from several other places, one of the most recent ones being awarded at the meeting of the New Hampshire State Dairymen's Association at Woodsville, New Hampshire. The best of it is, that through the courtesy of Supt. Putnam, the writer is able to testify that the butter tastes just as superior to an amateur farmer as it evidently did to the skilled judges.

It looks very much as if Supt. Gould had struck about the right thing for the dust-laying on Main Street. It is a kind of work proven successful in many other cities and towns and promising freedom from dust and less discomfort for those who must walk over it, than that which was used last year. Certainly it will keep the stone cross-walks, which he has covered so liberally, from blowing away, and that will be one distinct gain. The dry weather has emphasized more and more during the past few weeks, the need of something besides water as a dust layer in the centre of the town. Let us hope that many of the town's streets can be protected in this same way out of the funds available for the work.

The Andover Historical Society announces the first public meeting for next Monday evening in the lower Town Hall. Everybody in Andover who is interested is cordially invited, and there should be a large attendance indicating a wide interest in this most excellent project. Few towns of the size of Andover and as rich in historical matters as Andover is, have gone so long without some central organization to preserve traditions and arouse new interest on the part of the rising generation. There should be no question about the success of the Andover Historical Society.

The announcement of the sale of the Park Street stables indicates the withdrawal from the livery business in Andover of one who has for many years catered to an exacting trade in an unusually efficient manner. Few men know the livery business better than does Mr. Higgins and he has made of his stable and its service one of the very best stable services in New England. It is not pleasant to see him retire, for Andover citizens have the same pride in such branches of private business as he has conducted so successfully, as they do in more public affairs, and when changes come such as this sale indicates, they are viewed with regret.

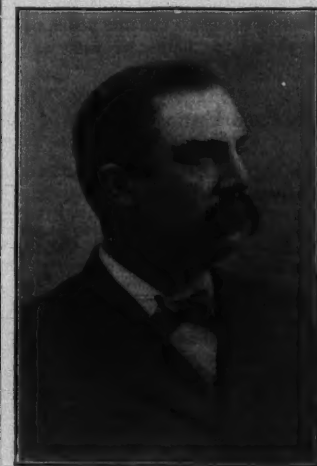

Andover loses a faithful public servant in the death of Town Clerk Marland. His service had been long and honorable and his friends were many.

DEATH OF ABRAHAM MARLAND

Andover's Town Clerk Died Late Thursday Evening Aged Seventy Years

Andover lost one of her best known citizens through the death last evening at about 9:30 o'clock of Abraham Marland.

Mr. Marland had been in poor health for several years, suffering a serious illness about a year ago and being attacked again with a similar trouble about two weeks ago. While the immediate cause of his decease is given as pneumonia, he had been troubled with a weak heart, making his sickness more complicated.

Mr. Marland was one of the leading citizens of Andover for many years. He was born here, January 18, 1841, and early began to follow manufacturing, in which his father was a prominent pioneer. He served for nearly twenty years as station agent at the Boston & Maine Railroad, and while holding that position in 1890, he was appointed postmaster and held that position for four years, when the election of a Democratic president made a change in the office. At the close of his term as postmaster he entered the town service, and since 1894 has held office continuously as either town clerk or tax collector, or both, serving at the time of his death as town clerk and clerk of selectmen.

As a town official he had a strong hold upon Andover citizens, his unfailing courtesy and kindness being always at the service of the patrons of his office.

He leaves a wife and one son, and one sister, Mrs. Geo. H. Poor. Funeral services will be held Sunday at the house and will be private. The family request that no flowers be sent.

Weddings

RHODES—WALLACE

A wedding of interest to Andover people took place last night in Hillsboro, N. H., when George Irving Rhodes, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Rhodes of this town, was united in marriage to Miss Olive Parker Wallace, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Robert W. Wallace of Hillsboro. The ceremony was performed in the Smith Memorial church. Dr. Malcolm B. McTernan acted as best man, while Roy Rhodes, brother of the groom, was among the ushers. Among those from Andover who were present were Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Rhodes, Roy Rhodes, Miss Alice McTernan, Miss Helen Cates and Dr. Malcolm B. McTernan.

CHASE—ABBOTT

A quiet home wedding took place on Wednesday morning when Miss Jennie S. Abbott, daughter of Mrs. Margaret E. Abbott, of Upland Rd., was united in marriage to Omar P. Chase. The ceremony, which took place at 9:30 o'clock, was performed by Rev. F. R. Shipman, in the presence of the immediate members of the family and two outside guests, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chase of Dorchester. The single ring service was used.

The bride wore a simple gown of white crepe-de-chine, and carried a large shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The couple were unattended.

The room in which the ceremony was performed was uniquely but effectively decorated with red maple keys and maple blossoms, the simplicity of their arrangement being peculiarly pleasing. Other decorations were almost unnecessary as the natural beauty surrounding the Abbott homestead was at its height, and nothing could be more attractive than the green fields and trees.

Refreshments were served to the guests on the lawn after the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Chase departed on a short wedding trip. On their return they will be at home at 95 Elm street.

The bride has for several years been a teacher in the John Dove school, while the groom is the well known local newsdealer.

CHOICES

A captive bird grown dull and gray,
Sadly pined through the long, bright day,
Till one who loved the creature small,
Hung her cage in the forest tall.

And lo! a linnet of the glade,
Flashing in light, hiding in shade,
Poured forth his song, so sweet and glad,
The pris'ner could not well be sad.

And all the day, now close, now far,
The linnet sang of love, and war;
For once a hawk, with eyes aflame
And rude cry, to the tree-top came.

But when the sunlight filled the world,
With long bright lines and aisles of gold,
The linnet piped his farewell lay,
"Peace and rest, 'My love for a day.'"

The house-bird felt a dread and fear,
With creeping sounds, and night-birds near,
One moment. Then a well-loved voice
Bade her affrighted heart rejoice.

Now as she flies from hall to hall,
She loves to hear her master call;
Dreams not of freedom or of nest,
Love of the highest is the best.

Annual Meeting Postponed

The annual meeting of the Free Church Men's Club, which was to have been held at the Club rooms in the Church, Tuesday evening, had to be postponed for lack of a quorum. The few who were present spent a most delightful hour, however, in the discussion of helpful and interesting public questions.

President John W. Bell had prepared question slips, and between bites of crackers and cheese, these were drawn by different members, and the subject freely and at times quite warmly debated.

Ladies' Night will be held Tuesday evening, May 23, at 8 o'clock. Members will meet at 7:30 o'clock the same evening for the election of officers for the ensuing year.

OUR baby pictures—like all portraits that we make—are natural in pose, properly lighted and beautifully finished.

Fast lenses, high class equipment and tireless tact are the reasons for our remarkable success in baby portraiture.

Come in some morning and let us get acquainted with the baby.

FINED FIFTY DOLLARS

Several serious forest fires have broken out this week, which have had to be fought energetically and persistently before they were extinguished.

On Sunday afternoon the woods around Pumps' pond was the scene of the trouble. A serious fire started there which threatened Holt's and Nuckley's icehouses. By dint of hard work, however, the flames were kept from the buildings. A large area of woodland was burned over, the fire spreading across the road and into Spring Grove cemetery.

It was found that the fire had been set by Edmund Rosener, a Phillips Academy student. He, together with two other students, were seen going through the woods and Rosener was seen to strike a match and throw it down into the dry underbrush.

The police were notified and the case came up before Judge Stone on Thursday afternoon. Rosener was fined fifty dollars. As he was not able to pay the fine the case was continued for one week, and he was held under bonds of $100. Principal Stearns furnishing security for him.

Several camps at Foster's pond were also threatened, among them that of W. H. Pearce of Summer St.

Sunday night about eleven o'clock someone who evidently thought that the day had not been strenuous enough for both men and horses, pulled in a false alarm from Box 42, which caused the whole department to set out post haste for the corner of Phillips street, where the box was located. The mistake was discovered, however, in a few minutes.

On Monday morning a fire starting near the Talbot place in North Andover, burned its way down towards the Downing place on Highland Road. Several hours of hard work were put in in subduing it, and it was finally thought that it had been overcome. It broke out again about eight o'clock Monday night, however, and a second trip was necessary.

Late Monday afternoon part of the department went to River street, Ballardvale, where fire completely wiped out what is known as "Lovers' Lane."

Resolutions on the Death of John H. Thompson

Whereas, the Carpenter's Union, 1298, has learned with deep regret and sorrow of the death of John H. Thompson, who was a member of the Union for many years; be it Resolved, That the Carpenter's Union desire to record their sense of loss in his removal from their membership, and to inscribe upon their records this tribute of appreciation.

Mr. Thompson was a conscientious and faithful officer, possessed of a great memory, and well read. One could not be in his presence but a short time without being benefited. He was a good workman who needed not to be ashamed, and be it further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, also to the Andover Townsman, and spread upon the records of the Union.

Abbot Academy Notes

Miss Edith E. Ingalls and Miss Sarah Wiltse were guests of the school over last Sunday. On Saturday afternoon Miss Ingalls read part of Mrs. Downes' well-known lecture on Westminster Abbey, giving as an introduction a very interesting account of the coronation exercises to be held in June. In the evening Miss Wiltse read one or two of her charming stories.

Wednesday was a perfect day for the annual Field Day sports, which were most successful in every respect. The marching on Davis Green of the two classes in their picturesque costumes was very effective. Both in field events and in the basketball game the Seniors were victors, the final score being 94 to 61.

Prof. John M. Tyler of Amherst will lecture on "The Development of Life" on Saturday at half past two in Abbot Hall. This lecture is open to the public at the usual price of 35 cents.

Auxiliary Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Andover Guild will be held at the Guild House, Friday afternoon, May 19, at 3.30 o'clock. We expect to have Miss Roche, former supervisor of the summer work in Haverhill, with us for an informal talk on Playground Work. This will probably be the last meeting until September.

AMY F. TROW, Sec.

Dry Goods Store Changes Hands

The new dry goods store recently opened in Barnard Block by F. G. MacDonald of Reading, has been sold by him this week to Miss M. F. Porter, formerly of Whitman. This move on the part of Mr. MacDonald came as a great surprise to all who have been interested in his store and have known of the success he has met with since coming to Andover. But his duties in his new business, combined with those in Reading, proved to be too much, so that to withdraw seemed best.

Miss Porter is not new to the dry goods business, having conducted a successful store for some years in Whitman. She assumed charge here on Tuesday morning.

AUXILIARY ANNUAL MEETING

Encouraging Reports of Work Done by Auxiliary to the Guild Heard Last Friday

First a superintendent hoping, then a committee of six planning, then a call for a meeting March 1st and who would dream of the results as reported at the annual meeting last Friday afternoon. The various reports show that in these few weeks there have been eight meetings, one hundred and seventy names have been enrolled, and one hundred and thirty more have been presented and will be called upon this week so far as possible. The treasurer reports three hundred and thirty-eight dollars in the treasury, over two hundred of which has been brought in by the enthusiastic work of the entertainment committee, consisting of Mrs. A. E. Stearns, Mrs. A. W. Leonard, Mrs. W. K. Moorehead, Mrs. G. C. Cannon and Mrs. J. J. Feeney. Ten committees have been appointed for various lines of work and of the forty names used in these appointments only two have been unable to serve. The following have been elected for 1911-'12, those starred for two years, and henceforth all elections will be for two years:

*President, Mrs. Percival Dove; *secretary, Mrs. Wm. A. Trow; *treasurer, Mrs. Frank Messer. Vice-presidents from the churches, *Mrs. Wm. Jackson, *Mrs. M. L. Hammond, *Mrs. Dean A. Walker, *Mrs. Addison LeBoutillier, *Mrs. W. K. Moorehead, Mrs. Maurice Curran, Mrs. W. B. Hodgkins, Mrs. P. F. Ripley, Mrs. Jos. W. Smith.

Supt. of Guild, Miss Anna B. Abbott. Advisory committee, Mrs. James Anderson, Miss Madeleine Hewes, *Mrs. C. E. Abbott, *Mrs. G. R. Cannon, *Mrs. J. N. Cole, *Mrs. J. J. Feeney, Miss Gertrude Sherman, Mrs. A. W. Leonard, Mrs. Anna Paddock, Miss Annie M. Downes, *Miss Mary Bell, *Mrs. J. A. Towle, *Mrs. N. E. Bartlett, Mrs. E. A. Baldwin.

The large membership committee that did such good work has been dropped in favor of a permanent committee to whom names can be given, or anyone interested to join the Auxiliary may become a member at any time by sending her name and fifty cents for the annual dues, to the treasurer and chairman of the membership committee, Mrs. Frank Messer. The others on the committee are Miss Helen Eaton, Miss Frances Tyler and Mrs. Wm. Jackson. The committee for financing the summer work are Mrs. N. E. Bartlett, Miss Gertrude Sherman, Mrs. A. P. Thompson, Miss Caroline Abbot and Miss Clara Putnam. Letters to all former contributors for the summer work were sent out by these ladies and resulted in $175 pledged with several to be heard from. The auxiliary voted to turn over $225 to the treasurer to complete the amount needed for summer work.

Committee for the study of industrial work in other towns, Mrs. J. A. Towle, Miss Isabelle Chapin, Mrs. A. P. Thompson, Mrs. Joseph W. Smith and Mrs. N. E. Bartlett, who have planned some trips for the near future and a meeting to be addressed by Miss Roche, the strong playground superintendent of Haverhill for many years. The committee on the pageant were Mrs. E. A. Baldwin, Miss Jessie Thomson and Miss Caroline Abbot. This committee has been added to the entertainment committee. The committee on extending the list of subscribers to the Guild: Mrs. Wm. Trow, Mrs. Robert Keep, Mrs. Percival Dove, Miss Jane Carpenter and Mrs. E. A. Baldwin, have postponed further action owing to the oft-repeated appeals recently made. The above mentioned committees, also the finance committee, Mrs. A. W. Leonard, Mrs. B. M. Allen and Mrs. A. E. Stearns, stand for another year. Mrs. W. F. Draper and Miss Mary B. Mills were elected honorary members.

AMONG THE CHURCHES, CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

C. E. Union Meeting

A meeting of the Andover Christian Endeavor Union was held on Monday evening in the Free church. There was a large attendance, delegates from the South, Free Baptist, North Andover and Ballardvale societies being present. Charles W. Richardson, president of the union, opened the meeting.

After a devotional service had been held, the visitors were welcomed by the president of the Free society.

Various matters of business were then brought up. The report of the secretary was read, and the report of the missionary work done during the past three months was heard. It was voted to admit the West church society to membership in the Union. William Shaw, who was present, then gave a description of the coming national C. E. Convention in Atlantic City, and the meeting appointed Charles Richardson as delegate to the convention.

The speaker of the evening, Walter D. Howell, business manager of the "Christian Endeavor World," was then introduced. Mr. Howell took as his subject, "Getting in to Get out." In a few words he explained the necessity of "getting into" Christian Endeavor work, in order to "get out" the most good and the best results. Mr. Howell was a very fluent and entertaining speaker, and his remarks were listened to with great interest.

The percentages of the various societies present were as follows: Baptist, 40 per cent; South Society, 39 per cent; Ballardvale, 45 1-2; Free, 46; North Andover, 44 2-7. The banner was awarded to the Ballardvale society.

At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed in the parish house.

Well Worth Hearing

The South Church Men's club are offering to Andover citizens a rare opportunity to hear a man with a national reputation, at their meeting next Friday evening.

At that time Dr. David Snedden, commissioner of education for Massachusetts, will speak in the South church vestry upon "Educational Problems." Dr. Snedden is one of the leading educators of the world and there should be a large audience to enjoy his important address.

National Associations

Two of the large National Associations of the summer—the National Sunday School Association and the National Educational Association—will meet in San Francisco, the first in late June, the other in early July. These are the only Associations that get one fare for the round trip. Some roads east of Chicago have not granted this though New Englanders will have no trouble in going on that rate. This is the first time since the burning up of San Francisco that she has entertained a large convention, but she is now better equipped for it than ever before. San Francisco is the only city in which every hotel is absolutely new and up-to-date and in anticipation of the coming of all National Associations at no distant day there is a Convention League, composed of prominent men of affairs, who not only secure the adoption of that city as a convention point but look after every detail of the arrangements so that visitors may see the most with the least effort. They secure written agreements with every hotel and restaurant that there shall be no advance in rates and that the visitors shall have as good as there is, as good as any guests can have, for the rates.

Not alone does the convention city exert itself but every other city in the State joins in the campaign to offer the delegates every possible opportunity to know the State and enjoy all of its attractions. The railroads west of Chicago make two vital concessions, never made in the East, whereby delegates can go by one route and return by any other, with stop over privileges anywhere en route west of Chicago.

Surprise Party Held

A most enjoyable birthday and surprise party was held Saturday evening at the home of Miss Dorothy Moncur, 29 Poor street, friends being present from Wakefield, North Andover and Boston. Frank Horgan of Wakefield presented Miss Moncur in behalf of her friends, with a handsome beaded bag. Miss Moncur thanked everyone, after which games and music were enjoyed. Songs were sung by Miss Dorothy Moncur and George Ireland, piano solos by Miss May Goff, Emma Micheline, and Miss Margaret Moncur, after which refreshments were served.

Among those present were the following: Misses Dorothy Moncur, Charlotte Dick, Emma Micheline, Margaret Moncur, Agnes Daley, Ina Taylor, Pearl Brown, Isabel Micheline, Annie Stack, Jennie Barrett, Nellie Daley, Catherine Barrett, May Goff, Jessie Moncur, Gertrude Hartigan, Margaret McAllister and Jessie McAllister from Boston.

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

Marriages in France

In my last letter I spoke of the absurd and wasteful manner they have in collecting the town taxes in France. Yet there are many things that we might copy from the "Code Napoleon" which, in my opinion would be an improvement to our boasted American constitution.

We are disgraced as a nation by the number of divorces. Our marriage laws are lax and as I see it one of the chief causes of so many unhappy marriages in this country. A marriage license in France is a different kind of document from the license to marry we have here.

In fact there is no such thing in France as a license to marry. When you get your legal document from the Town Clerk or Mayor, you are legally married.

Let me try to explain this good French marriage law. If you are foolish enough to wish to get married, first thing you must do is to inform the Town Clerk. This official puts a notice of your intended marriage, not in the newspapers, you can do that yourself if you like. Your name and station in life, occupation or profession, and the name of your intended wife and her station in life; if she is a servant she is called a servant; if she is working in a factory, she is called—Mary McDougall, weaver or spinner or winder or whatever her occupation is; if she is a wealthy girl, (which she should be) living in her father's house, she is called—Louise De Vere, spinster; well, your name and the name of the woman as noted—no Miss or Mademoiselle about it—plain Bridget or whatever the name may be, is posted among the public notices on the Town House for ten days. When these ten days are at an end, you then can get married. But note well, not by a clergyman, but by the Mayor of the town or his deputy.

This legal marriage by the Mayor is witnessed by at least two witnesses and this signed and stamped document, stating that you are legally married must be shown to the clergyman if you wish a religious ceremony. It is not a marriage license you have to show the clergyman. It is a document stating that you are married. No clergyman will marry you unless you have this legal marriage document signed and stamped by the Mayor.

I have, as the French say, assisted at a marriage where the contracting parties, being married, were not of the same "cult" to use a short French word, and they were legally married in the morning by the Mayor, then the Protestant clergyman performed his ceremony and then the Roman Catholic clergyman finished by his ceremony.

Many French people who have been married for years go to church and have a religious ceremony of marriage performed, not to make their marriages legal, but as a religious duty. This letter may seem tedious but I am anxious to put this marriage question as I see it clearly in a shape that he that runs may read. I have said that the names of the parties intending marriage are posted among the public notices at the Town house door. Now suppose the girl lives in Lawrence or Boston or West Parish; the Lawrence Town Clerk has to put the names in some form on his public notices, and this Lawrence notice must be given to the Mayor of Andover as well as the notice his own Town Clerk had on Andover town house before he will legally marry you. All this red tape, if you will, gives thorough publicity to all the friends of the couple being married.

Now what I think is, that all this detail makes people think that being married is a serious business and not the trifling getting of a license on the impulse of the moment, which in my opinion leads to many people trying to get unmarried.

There are many things that we could learn and be all the better for learning from the French people. Respect for parents and old people, lifting your hat when a funeral passes you in the street and many other courtesies which we have never learned or forgotten after we did learn them.

Harry Lauder, the great Scotch comedian tells a bit story with which I conclude this lawyer's French letter. "A runaway eloping couple in an automobile got out of oil and stopped at a cottage door. The young man called to a little boy and said, 'Run in, Kiddie, and ask your mother if she could give me some oil, castor oil or any kind will do. The boy came out and said, 'My mother has nae castor ile, but she says she can gie ye a dose o' salts.'"

Anyone can see that what I have said about the French way of getting married does not mean that a religious ceremony is wrong. It is simply a religious ceremony, not the legal marriage.

Suppose that it is necessary that the legality of a marriage had to be proved, so as to make the case evident in a court of law for inheriting property, or to show that the children were legitimate, you do not depend on referring to the church ceremony even if the original marriage document is lost. By applying to the Town Clerk of the town in which you were married, or sending him a fee of 25 cents, by return of post you get a copy stamped, sealed and signed of your legal marriage.

Last year I had to get proof of the age of one of my children. I sent to the Town Clerk in France and by return of post got the legal document.

To make a long story short, public notice of intention to marry and legal marriage by the mayor first, and any religious ceremony after that the parties wished, would help to make people think before unthinkingly getting yoked for life with a balky companion.

PSALM XLVIII

This is the third song of the trilogy which celebrates the defeat of Sennacherib, the vain mortal who claimed himself king of the earth, but was turned back by the way he came, with God's hook in his nose, and God's bridle in his lips; and was assassinated by his own sons while worshipping in the temple of Nisroch his god, Is. 37:20 and 38.

The theme of the three is the eternal fact of God's presence with all men, and His special care and protection over those who entrust themselves to His keeping. The three Psalms were probably written at the same period, while the catastrophe of Sennacherib and his hosts was still vivid. Their contents may become more interesting to us, if we compare them with parallel passages in Isaiah.

Notice, as one of the causes of this invasion, the rejection of God's proffered help by King Ahaz, Is. 7:2-20, also Is. 8:4-8. Here the prophet compares the coming disaster to a "great river, flooding the whole land. The 46th Psalm illustrates the same—an earthquake and tidal wave.

But it was not the sin of Ahaz only. The people of Judah had "wickedly departed from their God." Jerusalem alone, now under the reign of the good Hezekiah, was looking to God for help.

See, for the sin of the people, Is. 8:10. "Seeking them that have familiar spirits, that chirp and mutter. Should not the people seek unto their God? On behalf of the living should they seek unto the dead? For the penalty, see 8:21, 22, and for other guilt and its punishment see 10:1-11, and then the punishment of the Assyrian (12:10).

(28-32) gives a list of the cities ("Daughters of Judah") destroyed by the invading hosts; as foretold. But as if from a height that overlooks the clouds, Isaiah foretells the deliverance of Jerusalem and the overthrow of the Assyrian when he had wrought out the purpose of God in discipline of his people, e.g. Is. 10:12-10, and 24-27; also Is. 37:21-29, and II K. 19:32-37.

Our Psalm appears to be the work of an eye-witness. It divides into three parts. The first (Vs. 1 and 2), presents the greatness of Jehovah and the glory of the city where he dwells. Second (3-8), Jehovah revealed as the divine protector. Third (9-14), the lessons of the deliverance. I. Great is Jehovah. Exceedingly to be praised. "Beautiful for elevation." (See Stanley's "Sinai and Palestine," chapter III, page 169. The whole chapter is very instructive and interesting.) "The sides of the north." The site of the temple where Jehovah is enthroned above the "Mercy Seat." "The joy of the whole earth," because of the presence and power of the Almighty. Whatsoever He does is for the good of all men.

The saved city stands as an act of God.

11. The second stanza describes tersely and powerfully the enemy's approach and repulse. Calvin compares the Hebrew to Caesar's Latin veni, vidi, vici (I came, I saw, I conquered), which might be rendered from the Hebrew for short. They marched, were terrified and fled. "For lo, the king's vassals assembled. They saw and were amazed and in dismay they fled. Trembling seized them, they were scattered like sheep of Tarshish by an east wind. See I Kings, 32:48. In the 46th Psalm "He utters His voice." Here He breathes upon them. God's vengeance requires no effort.

V. 8. According as we have heard so have we seen. History repeats itself. It must be so in human affairs. It is no less so in the world of grace. It is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumers, because his compassions fail not. All that God has ever done, collectively or individually for men, he is ready upon occasion to repeat. Israel remembered their deliverance by the Red Sea. It was repeated at the Jordan, and again at frequent intervals as the generations passed. And now once more experience proves the record. Nothing is too hard for the Lord. A previous Psalm says "Our fathers have told us what wonders were done in days of old, and now, 'according as they have heard, so have they seen,' and this new deliverance inspires a sure hope for all future time. God will establish it forever (verse 8). But was the hope sure and steadfast? At that very time, during the reign of Hezekiah, Micah the Morastite prophesied saying, "Zion shall be plowed as a field, and Jerusalem shall become heaps and the mountain of the Lord's house shall be as the high places of a forest," Jer. 26:18. In a little more than a hundred years we hear the wail "Zion is a wilderness; Jerusalem a desolation." A man might have stood upon the ruins and said my father's Father saw the city saved from ruin, by the destruction of the Assyrian hosts in one night, and now the "Joy of the whole earth" is rubbish! "Has God forgotten to be gracious? Doth His promise fail forever more?" And the answer would be, I am Jehovah, I change not. Therefore ye, O sons of Jacob, are not consumed. He waits to be gracious. But there can be no compromise with wickedness. Jerusalem arose from her ashes and put on her glory and beauty, but afterwards fell into a more awful destruction, too terrible for language to describe, for rejecting and crucifying her promised Messiah, the Son of God.

Said Mordicai to Esther, "If thou hold thy peace at this time, deliverance will arise to the Jews from another place, but thou and thy father's house will perish." God's promises are, and remain to be, fulfilled. But we can sell our share in them, like Esau, for a mess of pottage. God has eternity to work in, and can afford to wait. "One day is with Jehovah as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day," but it is our privilege to be looking for and hastening the day of the Lord.

Verses 10. We ponder thy loving kindness in the midst of thy temple. We compare the past and present mercies. The renown of them is to the ends of the earth a world-wide and age-long celebration. Thy right hand is full of righteousness. Let Mount Zion rejoice. Let the daughters of Judah be glad because of thy judgments—acts of judgment against enemies. "I know O Lord that all thy judgments are right and that thou in faithfulness has afflicted me." The righteous man rejoices in all that releases God, even in his judgments; whether they affect himself or others.

Verses 12. The siege is raised, ingress and egress are no longer barred. All may go forth and look upon the uninjured city in its beauty and strength as if it were a new gift of God. They might well inscribe upon the different towers, "Jehovah nissi," The Lord my banner; "Jehovah shalom," The Lord my peace; and "Jehovah shamamah," The Lord is there. Psalm 46 invites them to view God's desolations. This to view his preservations and both, "that they may tell them to their heirs, that they also may say as we have heard so have we seen." Which the captives in Babylon must repeat in a very different tone from its utterance in this anthem of praise.

Verses 14. For such a God is ours. He will be our Guide forever and ever.

What can compare with the guidance of God, the Omnipotent, the Omnipotent, whose name is Love?

What he wants in us is character, without which nothing is worth having. If he cannot induce it in us, he will produce it by us in others, for he can turn everything to account, even our sinfulness. He has a use for Sennacherib, "the rod of mine anger." If you will not be a precious stone He will use you for a grindstone, an emery wheel upon which to polish his jewels.

North Andover Grange Won

Tuesday night was "competitive night" at the Grange, and a debate was in order between the local society and the North Andover Grange. The subject discussed was "Resolved, That to further restrict emigration to this country would be a detriment to agriculture." North Andover, represented by Mrs. Arthur Farnum, Mr. Messeli and Mr. Nichols, upheld the affirmative, while the Andover team, consisting of Edward Boutwell, Ira Hill and Edward Burt, argued for the negative. The discussion was warm and good arguments were put up by both sides. North Andover finally won by 78 1-2 points to 73. The judges of the contest were Wallace Upton of North Reading, Mrs. Morton of Methuen and George Trull of North Tewksbury.

There was a good attendance, several visitors from out of town being present, in addition to the regular members.

Following the debate refreshments were served.

By Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy for Kidneys and Liver.

Disorders of women are the result of general bodily weakness. Dr.
Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is a strength builder and for women it has proved of great value. Thousands testify to this. A sick woman almost always has kidney trouble, which causes pain in the back, headache, nervousness and other distressing symptoms. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy helps the Kidneys and Liver to act properly, purifies the blood and gently moves the bowels, striking at the cause of Kidney, Liver, Blood and Bladder troubles.
For over 35 years it has enjoyed steady and merited success, for it is an honest remedy and has stood the test of time. Write Dr.

staging has been well looked after,
and the entire production is highly satisfactory.

"The Commuters" is on its twelfth

The Pageant of Darkness and Light

A great revival of interest in pageantry has sprung up in this country and abroad during the last few years. We have had historical, patriotic, and semi-political pageants in various cities and towns; but none of these has approached either in operatic splendor or in the unity of story the Pageant of Darkness and Light, now being given daily at Mechanics Building in Boston, in connection with "The World in Boston" missionary exposition.

This production actually goes back to the carefully planned and magnificently set pieces of Ben Jonson and other Elizabethan lovers of pageantry. It is no mere string of scenes, passed like a bewildering panorama before the spectators. Instead, it was built around a set motive. The excellent libretto of John Oxenham, although short, contains some lyrics of great rhythmic beauty.
Dramatic unity is maintained by having a scene, called an episode, from missionary history in each of the four quarters of the globe. North, South, East and West, and closing with a beautiful processional episode with an immense final tableau of a thousand participants in the attitude of worship and triumph.

The first episode is in an Indian camp in the Northwest. The chief and his wife are in distress over the loss of their little daughter who has strayed. A band of Esquimaux come to trade and the Medicine Man incites the Indians to kill the visitors. Just then a missionary brings the chief's little daughter into the camp, and having gained the chief's good will, preaches to the people his message of light.

The scene shifts to Africa, at a spot where Livingstone, the famous missionary, is resting. Here Stanley finds him and begs him to return to England, but Livingstone determines not to go until his work is done. At this news his men break into a song of thanksgiving.

The East episode is in a city of India. A funeral procession is seen, leading a young widow to the funeral pyre. Just as the pyre is about to be lighted, however, an English official rushes in with a proclamation prohibiting the burning of widows, and the missionaries break into a joyful chant.

The most dramatic episode of all opens on a coral beach in Hawaii.
In the background the volcano Kilauea towers, while a wedding party rejoices. A priest of the Goddess Pele approaches and chooses the bridegroom and a child as victims to be thrown into the volcano as a sacrifice. The Christian Queen Kapiolani appears and bids defiance to the goddess. She taunts Pele, but there is no answering wrath from the crater of fire, and the power of the goddess is broken forever.

The music for these episodes was written by Hamish MacCunn. There are gloomy Indian chants and bloodthirsty war songs; jubilant missionary choruses and hymns of praise;
fantastical invocations of medicine men and native priests; and many solos of every description. The music is scored for full orchestra and chorus, and the composer has made plentiful use of all modern instrumentation in order to express the wild character of scenes and setting.

Mr. George Pickett is the Pageant Master, having been brought from England to produce it. The musical director, Ephraim Cutter, Jr., conducts a chorus of more than 300 voices. The soloists are Miss Blanche Towle, soprano, and Miss Adelaide Griggs, contralto, both of Boston; Mrs. Francis Annesley of London, England, mezzo soprano;
Henry Gurney, tenor, and Frank M.
Conley, bass, both of Philadelphia, and William Gustafson, Jr., of Boston, baritone.

Lawrence Opera House

Laughs are as free as air at the Lawrence Opera house this week,
where the members of the Lawrence Stock company are disporting themselves in that rollicking farce, "A Stranger in a Strange Land."

Arthur Behrens appears very much at home in the light comedy role of Jack Thorndyke, a role unlike anything in which he has been seen this season. Miss Gertrude Shipman proves an excellent foil for him as the young American girl, Alice Wellington, and the balance of the company are close runners-up for honors.

This is farewell week for Miss Lora Rogers, the popular second woman of the company, for she leaves Lawrence Saturday night to join a stock company in her home city of Providence. A public reception and farewell will be tendered her Saturday afternoon.

The bill for next week will be the great New York and Boston success,
"The Man of the Hour," the best of all modern dramas.

Obituary

JOHN SELBY

John Selby, well and favorably known to a wide circle of friends in Andover, passed quietly to rest at his home in Boston last Monday forenoon. Mr. Selby was a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Auchterlonie of Pearson street, who together with other members of the family attended the funeral on Wednesday. Burial took place in Mount Hope cemetery, West Roxbury. The widow and two small children are left to mourn his loss.

Bird Meeting Held

An interesting field meeting of the Andover Natural History society was held in the vicinity of Carter's hill Saturday afternoon from four o'clock to seven, when a bird meeting was enjoyed.

The following members of the feathered tribe were observed during the trip: English sparrow, red-winged blackbird, purple grackle, robin, crow, chippy, goldfinch, yellow warbler, blue-headed vireo, purple finch, downy woodpecker, pine warbler, black throated green warbler, blue jay, chimney swift, bluebird and pheasant.

Among those present were the following: Messrs. O. P. Chase, Jonathan E. Holt, Dr. C. E. Abbott, Misses C. H. Abbott, Grace Hill, Florence I. Abbott, Jennie S. Abbott, Clara A. Putnam, Lucia G. Merrill, Miss Johnston, Mrs. C. E. Abbott, Mrs. E. W. Whitman, Mrs. McGregor, Mrs. Fletcher and Mrs. Charles L. Carter.

W. H. Higgins to Withdraw

W. H. Higgins, the well known proprietor of the Park Street stables, is shortly to withdraw from active business here. On Monday morning May 22, at 10 a.m., his real estate, consisting of two stables, a small hospital stable, a cottage house and about 3000 sq. feet of land, and all personal property, such as horses, hacks, carriages, wagons, carts, barges, sleighs, harness, robes, etc., as well as all the office furniture, will be sold at public auction by Charles F. Keyes, auctioneer, of Lowell.

Mr. Higgins has been considering an offer that has been made him, and has decided to accept it and identify himself with his new enterprise. Hence his sale of his Andover business. He will not begin his new work until fall, however, as he intends to devote his summer to looking after his farm on Prospect Hill.

Attention, Eligible Sons of Veterans!

Memorial Day is once more near at hand. The day on which we show our love and appreciation for the service rendered to our country by the "Grand old Boys in Blue," comrades of the G. A. R., my father and your father. Eligibles, wake up! My father gave himself that this nation might live and prosper, and yours did the same. Can I do less to show my appreciation for the nation in which I live (and there is none better on this planet) than to strew flowers on the graves of these men once a year? Can you do less? Brother eligibles, I entreat you that before Memorial Day, 1911, shall have dawned you will have made a firm resolve to either place your application with a camp of Sons of Veterans for membership or to be in line on that day with a camp to do your share in carrying out the exercises of the day.

Camp 111 of this town cordially invites you to be present at the G. A. R. hall Memorial Day morning at 7.30 to participate with them in the exercises of the day.

Yours in F., C. and L.
JESSE S. BILLINGTON,
Cor. Sec.

Overseers Win, 3 to 1

The last game of the season was played on the Hillside House alleys last evening between teams representing Clan Johnston and the Smith & Dove Overseers club, and resulted in a victory for the latter by three points to one. Skea of the Clan was high roller, with a single string of 113 and a total of 293. Lawson was honor man for the Overseers with a single of 113 and a total of 287. Though not the closest, this is one of the best games played on these alleys this season. The following are the scores:

CLAN JOHNSTON
MacKenzie	75	81	86	242
MacDonald	91	95	93	279
Skea	89	91	113	293

Fortunes are annually expended in proclaiming as "Best on Earth" flour that never rise above the dead level of mere goodness. "ONWARD" flour towers above this level as a lofty mountain peak, in solitary grandeur, commands the surrounding plain. Diamonds cost more than rhinestones. "ONWARD" costs a little more than other flours, but it is worth much more. Diamonds outwear rhinestones. "ONWARD" outlasts other flours. We ask the consumer to be both judge and jury. "ONWARD" flour costs a little more than many of these advertised as the "Best in the World" but no more than some other flours. "ONWARD" costs more than ordinary flours, but consumers—the judge and jury who have tried it—decide that it excels in quantity as in quality. If you use "ONWARD" flour you get lowest cost bread.
